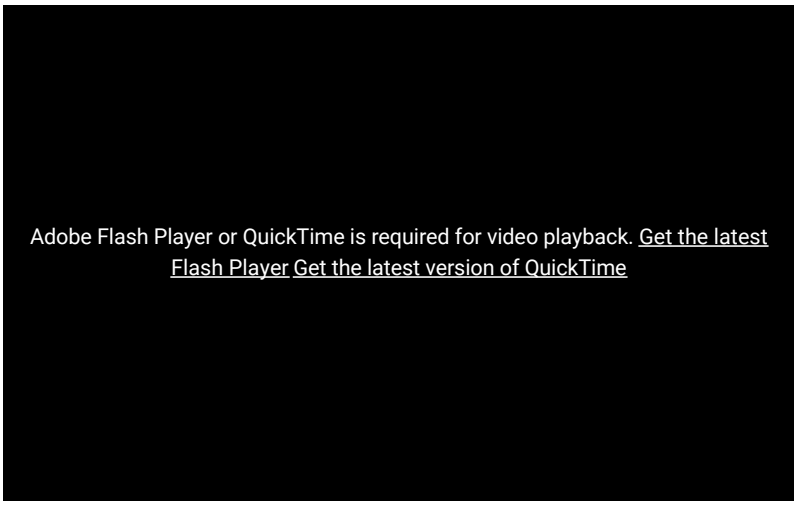
Alumni

Once you complete a programme within the International Development Department, you will automatically become a member of our global community of graduates.

Currently more than 3,800 IDD alumni have taken their knowledge and experience to over 148 countries around the globe and are working in a variety of jobs in the public, private and voluntary sector.

There are both a IDD alumni Facebook group (http://www.facebook.com/groups/IDDBham) and IDD alumni LinkedIn group (http://www.linkedin.com/groups?home=&gid=4659939&trk=anet_ug_hm) for all IDD alumni, which would would encourage all alumni to join.



Concy Aciro (2009) "As a Member of Parliament and a leader, I will continue to use the skills and knowledge I acquired during my time at Birmingham and I am sure the experience will continue to support my efforts as both a Member of Parliament and in leading my constituents."

Alumni profiles

Dr Lenni Montiel (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/alumni/profiles/postgraduate/lenni-montiel.aspx)

Studying and living at the University of Birmingham has been for me one of the more rewarding experiences in my life. I got a PhD in Public Policy that allowed me to move forward in my career in international development. I was privileged to joint the Department when it was still the Development Administration Group (DAG) and was able to see and experience its day to day transformation into the International Development Department (IDD).

Ahmed Moghazy Ibrahim (2009-10) (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/alumni/profiles/postgraduate/ahmed-moghazy-imrahim.aspx)

I joined IDD in 2009 for a MSc in Governance & Development Management. Simply, I would describe the time that I spent there as the unforgettable best time ever I had. My eyes were opened to new things, I met amazing people from all over the world and I was well-equipped to the market. I got a job only one month after my graduation ceremony.

Video: Samuel Ofosu Ampofo, Public Administration and Development (Distance Learning) MSc (2013) (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/alumni/profiles/postgraduate/2012-13/samuel-ofosu-ampofo.aspx)

Samuel Ofosu Ampofo describes his experience of studying an MSc Public Administration and Development by distance learning at the International Development Department, University of Birmingham during his recent graduation.

More profiles throughout the department (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/alumni/profiles/index.aspx)

Keeping in touch

To make sure that the Development and Alumni Office can stay in touch with you at the end of your studies, please update your details via alumnioffice@contact.bham.ac.uk (mailto:alumnioffice@contact.bham.ac.uk) or register for your.bham (http://www.your.bham.ac.uk/) .

- Your.bham online alumni community (http://bhamalumni.org/NetCommunity/Page.aspx?pid=192)
- University of Birmingham Alumni section (http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/alumni/index.aspx)

© University of Birmingham 2015