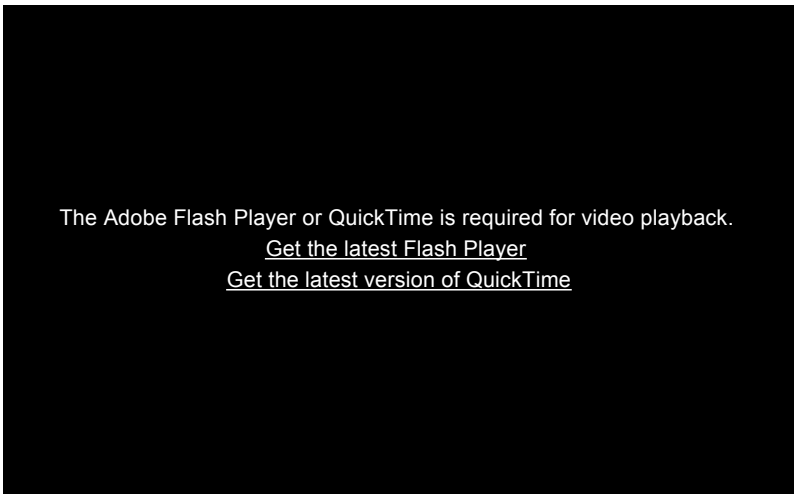
We use cookies to ensure that we deliver the best user experience of our website. If you would like to, you can change your cookie settings at any time. Continue

Global Cooperation in Practice

Modular value:20 credits
Teaching:two hour seminars

Coordinator: Professor Mark Webber (/staff/profiles/government-society/webber-mark.aspx)



Global Cooperation in Practice examines how academic debates on cooperation and policy-making stand up against the actual experience of implementation.

The module will explore this issue by identifying models of policy and decision-making, and then testing them against practitioner experience. This will entail an examination of case study evidence derived from primary sources (communiques, memoirs, documentaries) as well as engagement with policy practitioners through guest lectures, including former and current government officials, diplomats and international civil servants.

The module will draw upon policy cases from multilateral settings including formal international organisations such as the United Nations, the European Union, NATO, and the IAEA.

Teaching and learning approach

The module will be delivered in 2 hour sessions using a range of teaching and learning methods, including interactive lectures, group discussions, breakout sessions, case studies, videos and guest speakers.

Assessment

The assessment for the module will consist of:

- One 2,000 word briefing paper worth 80% of the module marks
- One oral presentation worth 20% of the module marks

You may be interested in these modules:

- 20 credits - Fear, Cooperation and Trust in World Politics (/postgraduate/courses/taught/govsoc/modules/fear-cooperation-trust-world-politics.aspx)
- 20 credits - Transforming Conflict in Global Politics (/postgraduate/courses/taught/govsoc/modules/trust-building-conflict-transformation.aspx)

You may be interested in this degree:

- Global Cooperation and Security MSc (/postgraduate/courses/taught/govsoc/global-cooperation-security.aspx)

© University of Birmingham 2014