Research

Dr Wood's research combines neuropsychology and brain imaging. Current projects include:

1) Long-term outcomes of fetal exposure to antiepileptic drugs. Australia-wide cognitive follow up studies, in collaboration with the Australian Pregnancy Register for women with epilepsy and allied disorders.

2) Functional imaging in children. This program aims to understand the emergence of skills in relation to neural development.

3) "BUBS" - The Birmingham University Babies Study. This study aims to characterise early biomarkers of poor outcomes in children exposed to compromised intrauterine environments.
