About

Huw Macartney is a political economist whose work is broadly concerned with the politics of banking and financial services.

Qualifications

PhD International Political Economy (Manchester)

MA Research Pathway (International Political Economy) (Manchester)

Biography

Huw received his ESRC-funded PhD on European financial market integration at the University of Manchester. Following this he held an ESRC Postdoctoral Fellowship at the University of Nottingham before being appointed as a Hallsworth Fellow in Political Economy, again at the University of Manchester. He then held Lectureships in International and Comparative Political Economy before joining the University of Birmingham as a Lecturer in IPE in September 2013.

Huw's current research focuses on two big themes: UK and European banking reform following the global financial crisis; and depoliticisation and its relationship to the Eurozone debt crisis. He is Undergraduate Lead for the Political Economy programme, and Exchange Tutor for POLSIS.

Teaching

POLS 205 International Political Economy (co-taught with Luis Cabrera)

POLS 314 Contemporary International Political Economy
