Welcome

Choosing the right university isn't easy. The University of Birmingham is a distinguished university, on a glorious campus, in a great city; a fact acknowledged recently when the campus was selected by the BBC as the venue for the third and final Prime Ministerial Debate prior to this year's General Election. The University's attraction lies in the fact that its heritage reaches back over 100 years, and it looks forward as one of Britain's leading universities to the challenges and opportunities of this century: to the impact that its research and teaching will have on lives, societies and industries in the future. Our open days are designed to give you a taste of our great university and provide you with all the information you need to make an informed choice. There are talks and displays but, more importantly, there will be an opportunity to meet the students and staff who live and work here, and we hope you leave with a picture of the real Birmingham.

This is one of the top universities in the UK and I am delighted that the results of the Research Assessment Exercise 2008 confirmed that the University's research has global reach: 89 per cent of the University's research activity was ranked as 'world leading' or 'internationally excellent'. Our teaching is very highly regarded and the quality of the student experience is amongst the best in the Russell Group. However, because we value our students so highly we are continuing to invest very substantially in our student facilities, services, and accommodation. We are also committed to improving the quality of student life and ensuring that you have access to all the support systems you need to help you achieve your potential. We also care deeply about making sure that our students feel socially integrated and supported so that they can fully benefit from university life.

During your time here the University will offer you opportunities to develop additional skills which, when combined with your academic progress, will make you still more valuable to employers. We are particularly committed to making sure that we respond to what our students need to help them develop their academic and personal capabilities: it is this that makes Birmingham students attractive to graduate recruiters. I hope on your visit today you experience the same sense of Birmingham being not just a university, but your university. If you do, you, like me, will benefit from Birmingham's eminent history, relish everything it has to offer to the modern student, and shape the future of this dynamic university.

With best wishes

Professor David Eastwood
Vice-Chancellor

The University

- Spends around £1 million each week on developing the campus and improving our students' learning experience
- Is at the forefront of cancer research in the UK and has been chosen as the first Cancer Research UK Centre
- Is home to the Visual and Spatial Technology Centre – one of the best-equipped archaeological visualisation laboratories in Europe
- Is a university of firsts: the first university to establish a faculty of commerce; the first to establish a medical school; the first to open a women's hall of residence; and the first to run a sports programme
- Continues a tradition of discovery with our research into the treatment of cancer, pioneering work on space science, and exciting developments in nanotechnology

How to reach the University

We are pleased that you are planning to attend our open days this year. As part of our commitment to reducing our impact on the environment, we would strongly encourage you to travel by public transport when you visit the University.

Each year we welcome some 15,000 visitors to our open days; as a result, the adjacent roads and University car parks get very busy. The University has only a limited number of car parking spaces on open days and we strongly recommend, where possible, for visitors to use public transport.

By rail

Being the only university in mainland UK with its own station, the easiest way to reach the University is by train. Most cross-country services to Birmingham arrive at New Street station and up to six trains an hour depart for the University on the cross-city line (final destination Longbridge or Redditch). The journey time usually takes less than 10 minutes, while the centre of the main campus is a five-minute walk from University station. Student ambassadors (wearing lime green shirts) will be present at New Street station throughout the day to direct you.

By coach

There are frequent express coach services to Birmingham from London, Heathrow and Gatwick airports and many other UK cities. The long-distance coach station is in Digbeth in the city centre.

By bus

Numbers 61, X62, 63 and 64 travel to the University's Edgbaston and Selly Oak campuses.

Parking on campus

The high number of visitors means that the University is only able to offer a limited number of spaces on these days. If you are intending to travel by car, the University has three main car parks: South, North and Pritchatts Road car parks – guides will be present to direct and assist visitors. Parking at these car parks is £1 per day (pay and display) unless you are parked in the park and ride car parks.

Park and ride

In addition to University parking areas, there is a park and ride car park with free shuttle bus services. This is based at King Edwards School playing fields – a short distance from the University. Look out for the green flags marking the entrance. A map of the park and ride car park can be found at www.opendays.bham.ac.uk

Park and ride will be operating on a first-come, first-served basis. Shuttle buses to and from the University will be running throughout the day, dropping off and picking up from outside the Education Building (building R19 on the map on the back page).
