

Get involved

Enrolling as a student with the University of Birmingham is the beginning of a valuable lifelong relationship.

Your connection with the University of Birmingham might start when you enrol as a student but this is only the beginning of a lifelong relationship that's important to us both.

After graduation, you can stay involved with the University and your fellow alumni in a variety of ways including: being a positive ambassador for Birmingham; offering guidance to current students; featuring in our marketing materials and arranging a reunion of your class or year group.
