

A groundbreaking new music building

Posted on Wednesday 15th September 2010

The Bramall Music Building will become home to the University's internationally renowned Music Department, housing a 450-seat concert hall and state-of-the-art accommodation for teaching and research.

At the groundbreaking ceremony on Friday 16 July, supporters of the project joined representatives from the University, builders BAM Construction and architects Glen Howells to celebrate an historic moment.
