

Top alumni to boost student career prospects

Posted on Monday 9th May 2011

Some of the University's most prominent and successful alumni are to volunteer their time and expertise to undergraduates as part of a groundbreaking new career scheme.

Twelve final year students are to be given a once-in-a-lifetime chance to gain firsthand career insight and guidance from graduates who have excelled in their field in the newly-launched programme.

Among those involved are former UK Chief Medical Officer Sir Liam Donaldson (MSc Anatomy, 1976); Green Wing and Black Books actress Tamsin Greig (BA Drama and Theatre Arts, 1988); and Phyllida Lloyd CBE (BA Arts and Law, 1979), director of the most successful British film ever released, Mamma Mia!

The programme is the brainchild of Cilla Snowball CBE (BA French Language and Literature, 1981), Group Chairman and Group Chief Executive Officer at advertising and communications company Abbott Mead Vickers.

Cilla, who is one of the mentors, explains: 'At a time when employability is so high on the student agenda, it is great that the University's alumni can apply their mentoring skills to help Birmingham undergraduates.'

The initiative is part of a wider programme of activities at the University geared towards improving the employment prospects of graduates.

An investment of £3.5 million in employability has been pledged over five years from the 2011-2012 academic year onwards.
