

Professor John Colbourne, 'What can Waterfleas tell us about Evolution?'

Locations Haworth Building (Y2 on the Campus Map) - Lecture Theatre 101 - University of Birmingham

Date(s) Monday 24th February 2014 (18:30-20:00)

Contact To book or for further information please contact Rachel Wigglesworth
r.a.wigglesworth@bham.ac.uk
0121 414 4691

Download Add to Calendar \(/events/events/prof-john-colbourne-what-can-waterfleas-tell-us-about-evolution.aspx?ical=true\)

Part of the School of Biosciences' Spring Biology Lecture Series.

John's investigations encompass the fields of evolutionary ecology, high-throughput biology, environmental and functional genomics. John regularly works with industry and advises government agencies and professional societies, aiming to transform practices at monitoring and protecting the environment.

Cost: Free, but booking is required