In 1938, nine-year-old Eva left her Hamburg home for England as part of a mass deportation of Jewish children from Nazi Germany. As she grew up, she locked her childhood away in the attic. Half a century later, her daughter, Faith, uncovers it, causing her to question her entire identity. Diane Samuels' award-winning play invites us to consider what really makes us who we are, particularly relevant in the 75th anniversary year of the arrival of the first Kindertransports to Britain.
