Course Summary

Contact dermatitis accounts for approximately 80% of all occupational skin diseases, and many substances used at work are irritants or allergens. It is therefore important to know how to identify and manage cases of contact dermatitis and to develop effective dermal health surveillance programmes.

Learning Objectives

On completion of the course, delegates will be able to:

- Understand common occupational skin diseases, including their causes and management
- Investigate skin disorders reported in the workplace
- Determine whether the skin disorders are work related
- Understand the requirements of skin health surveillance programmes and their effectiveness
- Understand the legal requirements related to the assessment and management of occupational skin disorders
- Select the right types of equipment to minimise chemical dermal exposure
