

Political Economy and Economic Policy

The module concerns the theoretical foundations of development economics. The topics covered include: economics of growth and its application to developing economies; human capital and endogenous growth; institutions and development; growth and inequality; labour markets, migration and urbanisation; international trade and development.

Method of assessment:

Coursework (50%) and 2-hour written examination (50%)