

International Development (Urban Development) MSc/GDip

This programme is concerned with the following questions: How can we create sustainable communities amidst widespread urban poverty and rapid urbanisation? How can the management of towns and cities contribute to socially inclusive development? The challenge is to develop policies and practices that will reduce urban poverty and create decent, sustainable living conditions for many of the world's most neglected populations. The programme brings together the strengths of two departments in the University of Birmingham's College of Social Sciences, the International Development Department and the Centre for Regional and Urban Studies (CURS). Issues examined include: key topics in urban governance and management; regional and urban change; poverty reduction in urban centres; analysis of urban governance, management and policy issues.

The International Development Department is well-regarded internationally by sponsors, donor agencies, governments and NGOs. Study with us to benefit from:

- Expertise in key issues and skills valued by employers
- A vibrant, welcoming community
- Individual overseas fieldwork (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/courses/fieldwork.aspx) or study visit included in fees (on-campus programmes)
- Flexible programmes and a wide choice of modules (<http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/postgraduate/courses/taught/govsoc/international-development-urban.aspx?OpenSection=Modules>) (part-time students also welcome)
- A diverse and international student body
- Strong support in study and English language skills

Each programme is taught by a team of multi-disciplinary specialists who work closely with students to address individual interests and concerns. Every student is allocated an academic tutor to support them in their academic progress throughout the year. The department has a long history of teaching students from across the world, and recent students have come from 99 different countries and a wide variety of professional and academic backgrounds.

Learning and teaching

Learning, teaching and assessment

The programme uses a range of learning and teaching methods including short lectures, group work, group and individual presentations, individual study and exercises. Each module is assessed differently using assessments that include 2,000–3,000 word essays, group projects, presentations, exercises and exams. A 10,000–12,000 word dissertation is also required for the MSc award.

By the end of your study you will gain:

- An understanding of the central issues and policies in relation to processes of urbanisation and urban development in the South
- An understanding of the main socio-economic changes that cause urban growth in the developing world and the impact of urban growth, specifically on urban poverty issues
- An understanding of the policy alternatives and implications for urban poverty reduction
- An ability to analyse the urban economy and urban poverty where social exclusion, crime and fear of crime dominate much of people's experience of living in run down urban areas
- An understanding of the operation of tensions between central and local tiers of government and the role that other agencies play in the process of urban regeneration
- Writing skills to produce well structured and coherent essays and reports, making good use of references
- Oral presentation skills
- Ability to access material from different sources including policy documents and other publications from governments and international organisations, documents from the internet, and from books and academic journals
- The capacity to interpret and make use of material from the above sources

Fieldwork

Gain first-hand experience of development concepts plus valuable work experience without additional costs. This Masters degree enable students either to carry out individual fieldwork (/schools/government-society/departments/international-development/courses/fieldwork.aspx) in a country and on a topic of their choice or to take part in an organised study visit. Funding for this overseas study is included in the programme fee.

Enhancing your Student Experience

In the School of Government and Society we offer much more than a degree. As a student here, whether undergraduate or postgraduate, you have the opportunity to take part in a wide range of events (/schools/government-society/teaching/enhancing-student-experience/index.aspx), with some or all of the costs paid for by the School.

Some of these are targeted to help you build skills and experience for your CV, others are more open events designed to expose you to high-level speakers on current debates relevant to all Government and Society students.

“Georgiana Chiriac, Harvard Model United Nations (February 2013) (<http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government-society/teaching/student-profiles/postgraduate/idd/georgiana-chiriac-havard-mun.aspx>). "Overall, This opportunity was excellent for me and for the entire delegation in terms of gaining knowledge and expertise at the highest level, as well as with regards to personal growth and development."

“Joseph Bergson, Postgraduate Study trip to Delhi (2012) (<http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government-society/teaching/student-profiles/postgraduate/idd/bergson-joseph-msc-idd.aspx>). I found that in both class discussions and group work the level of knowledge from everyone on the course was very high and it felt really great to be among outspoken and clever people! The additional parts of the course also set it above others classes I have taken."
