

Support for your research

As a postgraduate researcher at Birmingham, you have access to a range of tailor-made services to support your study, develop your skills and strengthen your career prospects.

We understand the differing needs of students within our large and diverse postgraduate researcher (PGR) community, and our services are designed to be flexible and accessible to all. The University Graduate School works to ensure that all PGRs are aware of these services and sources of support, and that they are delivered in a coordinated way.
