

Former MA Translation student offered translation traineeship at European Union in Brussels

Posted on Tuesday 3rd December 2013

Nefeli Bantela who just completed an MA in Translation Studies, has been offered a five-month paid translation traineeship at the European Union Directorate-General for Translation in Brussels.

Nefeli has followed modules on Greek translation on the MA, and as a trainee she will do the same work as staff translators, i.e. translating documents into her mother tongue from at least two official EU languages. She will be translating from English and German into Greek. She will also be assigned to do terminology work. Her internship will start February next year.
