

Critical Sexology comes to the Midlands

Posted on Monday 13th January 2014

Professor Lisa Downing (</staff/profiles/french/downing-lisa.aspx>) has co-organised this popular interdisciplinary seminar series with Dr Meg Barker (Open University) and Dr Robert Gillett (Queen Mary, University of London) since 2006.

Seminars have traditionally been held in London, with one seminar per year taking place at a university in a Northern location in more recent years. This year, "Critsex" as it is affectionately known, comes to the Midlands. The inaugural seminar (</research/activity/gender/events/2014/critical-sexology-seminar.aspx>) will be held at the University of Birmingham in February.

Date: Friday 14 February 2014, 14.00-18.00
Venue: Lecture Theatre 7, Strathcona Building

For more information about Critical Sexology, and to join the mailing list and receive details of events, please visit: <http://www.criticalsexology.org.uk/> (<http://www.criticalsexology.org.uk/>).

Privacy | Legal | Cookies and cookie policy | Accessibility | Site map | Website feedback | Charitable information

© University of Birmingham 2015

