

Policy paper on the implications of WTO renewable energy ruling

Posted on Friday 1st November 2013

In the context of the E-15 Initiative (/research/activity/iel/news/2013/rubini-e15.aspx) Dr Luca Rubini has co-authored with Aaron Cosbey, economist of the Canadian-based NGO International Institute for Sustainable Development a short 'think piece' which will constitute one of the documents that will be presented at a side-event of the WTO Ministerial Conference in Bali in December 2013.

Luca Rubini is currently working a book project on the regulation and governance of clean energy subsidies in the WTO. This will be published by Cambridge University Press in 2014.

The paper can be downloaded here: <http://e15initiative.org/clean-energy/> (<http://e15initiative.org/clean-energy/>)