

Help our researchers track sooty terns

Posted on Tuesday 3rd July 2012

Researchers within the Centre for Ornithology at the School of Biosciences are beginning to unravel the mysteries of where sooty terns go when they are not breeding on Ascension Island in the South Atlantic.

Read more about this research and how you can get involved on David Gregory's blog (http://www.bbc.co.uk/blogs/davidgregory/2012/06/help_track_a_tern.html) on the BBC Midlands Today website.

