

IRiS Doctoral Researchers Diversity Network

Posted on Thursday 18th April 2013

IRiS has received funding from the Alumni Impact Fund to establish a network for PhD students researching, or interested in researching, diversity. The Doctoral Researchers Diversity Network (DRDN) will be the first cross-University of Birmingham network for PhD students. It will facilitate collaboration and interdisciplinarity, a coherent web-presence for PhD students and provide students with opportunities to develop leadership, methodological and civic engagement skills around diversity. Information about events, master classes and other activities will be available on the website soon.

More information

For further information contact Ricky Joseph r.joseph@bham.ac.uk (<mailto:r.joseph@bham.ac.uk>).