About

Nando Sigona is a sociologist with over ten years research and teaching experience in migration, refugee and ethnic studies. He joined the School of Social Policy in February 2013 as a Birmingham Fellow. Dr Sigona's work investigates the interplay between forms and modes of contemporary membership, governance, and the politics of belonging. This is achieved through in-depth examinations of a range of experiences of membership including, but not limited to, those of: Roma; undocumented migrant families; ethnic minorities; children of undocumented migrant parents; unaccompanied asylum seeking minors; people with dual citizenship; 'failed' asylum seekers; and stateless people.

Nando is one of the founding editors of Migration Studies \(http://www.oxfordjournals.org/our_journals/migration/\), a new refereed journal by Oxford University Press that started publication in Spring 2013. He is one of the editors of the forthcoming Oxford Handbook on Refugee and Forced Migration Studies \(http://ukcatalogue.oup.com/product/9780199652433.do\) (Oxford University Press, 2014) and author (with Alice Bloch and Roger Zetter) of Sans Papiers: The Social and Economic Lives of Undocumented Migrants (Pluto Press, 2014).

He maintains an academic blog - Postcards from... \(http://nandosigona.wordpress.com/\), contributes for magazines, newspapers and blogs, and is active on social media. Qualifications

- PhD in Sociology, Oxford Brookes University
- BSc in Politics (Hons), University of Naples L'Orientale, Italy

Biography

Before joining the School of Social Policy as a Birmingham Fellow in February 2013, Nando was Senior Research Officer at the Refugee Studies Centre and Senior Researcher the Centre on Migration, Policy and Society (COMPAS) at the University of Oxford.

Nando has a background in Politics, Sociology and Social Anthropology. He has taught on the MSc in Migration Studies and the MSc in Forced Migration and Refugee Studies at the University of Oxford and in October 2012 was awarded the University of Oxford's Teaching Excellence Award for 'outstanding contribution to the MSc in Migration Studies'. Previously, he taught sociology of diversity, migration and forced migration at Oxford Brookes University and City University London.

His research sets to explore the impact of globalisation, migration and human rights regime on meanings and practices of citizenship and non-citizenship in countries affected by significant population movements. His research interests include: statelessness, diasporas and the state; Romani politics and anti-Gypsyism; 'illegality' and the everyday experiences of undocumented migrant children and young people; and governance and governmentality of forced migration in the EU.

His work has appeared in a range of peer reviewed journals, including Sociology, Social Anthropology, Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies and Ethnic and Racial Studies. He is author or editor of books and journal's special issues including Ethnography, diversity and urban space (with Mette Berg and Ben Gidley, Identities, 2013), Romani politics in contemporary Europe: poverty, ethnic mobilisation and the neoliberal order (with Nidhi Trehan, Palgrave, 2009), Refugee Community Organisations and Dispersal: Networks, Resources and Social Capital (with David Griffiths and Roger Zetter, Policy Press, 2005), The Roma in the new EU: Policies, Frames and Everyday Experiences (with Peter Vermeersch, Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, 2012), and Rifugio Europa? (Studi Emigrazione, 2006).

Nando is also one of the founding editors of Migration Studies \(http://www.oxfordjournals.org/our_journals/migration/\), a new refereed journal by Oxford University Press.
