

Birmingham Business School hosts AMBA Leadership, Learning and Networking event

Posted on Friday 25th November 2011

Birmingham Business School hosted a thought-provoking evening of discussion on the subject of leadership. Together with Association of MBAs as part of its MBA Links programme of networking and learning events, this event provided an invaluable opportunity for those interested in extending their MBA knowledge to learn about the latest developments in leadership theory and practice.

Speakers at the event included:

- Nitesh Gor, CEO of Dharma Consultancy with executive leadership experience in the exploration industry, asset management, venture capital and investment banking
- Phil Langstaff, Head of Executive Resourcing and Emerging Talent for the Lloyds Banking Group and an experienced HR leader with specialist expertise in leadership development
- Dr Bernd Vogel, Associate Professor of Leadership and Organisational Behaviour at Henley Business School with research interests in Leadership and organisational change
- Kevin Murray, Chairman of the Bell Pottinger Group and specialises in the field of strategic communications and leadership communications coaching.
