Revelation of Tesco accounting error may have done new board a favour \(/schools/business/departments/Accounting-Finance/news/2014/september/revelation-of-tesco-accounting-error-may-have-done-new-board-a-favour-25-09-14.aspx\)

There is a long history of companies misstating their financial position and performance, and on Monday Tesco plc became the latest with its announcement that it had overstated its half-year profit forecast by £250 million. This revelation, arising from information provided by an internal whistleblower, resulted in an 11 per cent reduction in the supermarket giant's share price, putting the share value at an 11-year low. How can an error this large have occurred?
