

The Graduate School

The Graduate School works on behalf of the 7,000 postgraduate students at the University to ensure the best possible research and educational environment. We have a diverse population of students from the UK and the world who study with us part-time and full-time across a large range of subject areas.

The Graduate School aims to expand students' knowledge, experience and skills for whatever future direction they choose to take. This is done by providing links, to help support the creation of an intellectually exciting environment, which takes postgraduate students beyond their academic silos and encourages interdisciplinary perspectives. Support is also provided through training activities, encouraging access to other relevant support services and providing opportunities for networking.

The Graduate School works hard to ensure the best possible research and educational environment for postgraduate students.

For more information visit the University Graduate School \(/postgraduate/support/dr/graduateschool/index.aspx\) page, or to contact the Graduate School please email graduateschool@contacts.bham.ac.uk (<mailto:graduateschool@contacts.bham.ac.uk>).