

Consultancy services

Our consultancy ethos is to work with clients in order to solve their problems. We fully appreciate the need to provide tailored solutions to specific challenges rather than adopting a one-size-fits-all approach.

Our unique contacts ensure that we can undertake both large and small scale work on a diverse range of topics, and for many companies we can also obtain funding towards the cost of a project.

Please note we will generally only undertake interesting and challenging work (we leave the standard run-of-the-mill projects to others). If you would like to discuss possible consultancy work please contact Ms Kate Jermey at k.jermey@bham.ac.uk (<mailto:k.jermey@bham.ac.uk>) or Dr David Boardman, at d.i.boardman@bham.ac.uk (<mailto:d.i.boardman@bham.ac.uk>).

In addition to a consultancy service we also run a number of training courses which have in the past enabled some people to solve their own problems. If you would like to discuss the training opportunities available then please contact Dr David Boardman, at d.i.boardman@bham.ac.uk (<mailto:d.i.boardman@bham.ac.uk>).

If you would like to enquire about using our in-house testing facilities, then please contact Dr David Boardman.
