Keynote and lead addresses

As research leaders in the field, our more senior researchers have a strong profile of invitations for keynote and lead addresses at scientific conferences internationally and nationally.

Some examples of these international keynote/more prestigious invitations include: Well over 60 as well as lectures to various national meetings, including BSDR symposia, and invited lectures to other universities nationally and internationally. Importantly, these reflect invited contributions to conferences targeted at cutting-edge scientific research as well as its translation to end-users. As well as these invited lectures, there has been a strong profile of oral and poster presentations at IADR, BSDR, IADR-PEF and AADR from researchers representing all of our research theme areas as well as at many more specialist research area national and international conferences.
