About

I moved to the Department in 2006 from the position of Research Fellow in Performing Arts at Manchester Metropolitan University. From 1997 - 2009 I was also a founder member and the associate director of the Open Performance Centre in Sheffield, where I co-founded the theatre company, Point Blank, and wrote and directed a number of nationally touring productions, as well as running schools and community performance projects across South Yorkshire.

Qualifications

I graduated with a first class honours degree in English Literature with Drama from the University of Sheffield, before completing an MA in Theatre Studies at the University of Leeds. I returned to Sheffield to take my doctorate which focused on the politics of Howard Barker's theatre.

Biography

My first academic appointment was Research Fellow in Performing Arts at Manchester Metropolitan University which I held from 1997-2006. During this time I was also founder member and associate director of the Open Performance Centre in Sheffield, where I co-founded the theatre company, Point Blank, and directed a number of schools and community performance projects across South Yorkshire.

I was the founder member and co-artistic director of Point Blank Theatre from 2000-2009. In this time I wrote and directed Dead Causes, Operation Wonderland and Roses & Morphine, wrote, directed and performed in Nothing to Declare, and acted as producer and dramaturgical advisor for An Evening with Psychosis. All productions toured nationally, and further details can be found at www.pointblank.org.uk (<http://www.pointblank.org.uk/>) in the past productions archive. Selected performance texts and critical articles on the company's work are published in Point Blank (Intellect, 2007).

Teaching

My research is in the area of contemporary theatre and performance, political and cultural theory, performance and devising techniques and new writing for theatre.

I regularly teach on second year modules Theatre Praxis, Theatre Lab and Collaborative Strategies, and the third year advanced practical intensive, Contemporary Practice. My study options include Political Performances and Contemporary Theatre and Performance when these are running

Postgraduate supervision

I welcome informal enquiries from any potential applicants with an interest in undertaking practice-based research or doctorates by thesis within my areas of current interest and expertise. I am currently interested in investigations of new contemporary playwriting or performance models, or analysis of European contemporary performance in relation to philosophical or political theory and the neoliberal context of production.

Research

My research is in the area of contemporary theatre and performance, political and cultural theory, performance and devising techniques and new writing for theatre.

My most recent monograph, Acts and Apparitions: Discourses on the Real in Performance Practice and Theory 1990 - 2010 (<http://www.manchesteruniversitypress.co.uk/cgi-bin/indexer?product=9780719083723>) was supported by AHRC funding and published by Manchester University Press.

I edited the third volume (1995 - 2014) of the Methuen series British Theatre Companies (<http://www.bloomsbury.com/uk/british-theatre-companies-1995-2014-9781408177280/>) which will be published in 2015.

My most recent practical research project, The Pool Game, was funded by Arts Council England and undertaken in association with artistic collective Geiger Counter in 2012. Full documentation of the production can be viewed at
