

MA Translation student wins CRCC Asia-British Council Scholarship

Posted on Monday 13th May 2013

Jessica Stubbs, currently a student on the MA in Translation Studies (</postgraduate/courses/taught/arts-law-inter/translation-studies.aspx>), has won the CRCC Asia-British Council Scholarship for a Student with a Disability.

Jessica's application was selected among over 120 highly competitive applications from UK university students across the country. The opportunity will provide her with a first-hand experience of the unique Chinese business and cultural environments through a professional internship with the British Council, Shanghai, helping her to stand out from her peers in the highly competitive graduate employment market.

Jessica will write a weekly blog throughout her time in Shanghai which you will be able to read here if you wish throughout June:

www.crccasia.com/internships/intern-blogs/

\(http://www.crccasia.com/internships/intern-blogs/\)