

Seminar Series made available online

Posted on Thursday 25th August 2011

The Shakespeare Institute has been successful in bidding for a teaching and learning grant from the University's Centre for Learning and Academic Development (CLAD) that will support the podcasting of the Thursday seminar series in 2011/12.

Audio from all of the seminars, which feature SI faculty as well as guest lecturers from across the UK, will be recorded and posted online for student and public listening. The grant was awarded specifically to help support our growing distance learning and part-time learning student community. Stay tuned for details of our autumn speakers, shortly to be released.