

CLAD funding for student projects

Posted on Thursday 9th February 2012

Congratulations to Shakespeare Institute (</schools/edacs/departments/shakespeare/index.aspx>), PhD students Amy Routledge and José Perez Diez on their successful bids to the University's Centre for Learning and Academic Development (CLAD). Amy and José have each received funding to support student-led projects enhancing the research and teaching culture among students at the Shakespeare Institute.

Amy's project will involve a day-long teaching skills workshop for SI postgraduate researchers aiming to become university lecturers, and José's project will involve the staging of a play he is editing for his PhD thesis using original practice techniques.