

Beyond Melancholy: Sadness and Selfhood in Renaissance England

Posted on Wednesday 8th May 2013

Erin Sullivan discussed her research into melancholy and sadness on Australian Radio's 'Weekend Arts' programme - a recording is available online (<http://www.abc.net.au/radionational/programs/weekendarts/erin-sullivan/4663060>).

Erin will be following this with a series of talks on my work at the University of Western Australia, University of Sydney, University of Melbourne, and University of Queensland - the last of which will be a public lecture in their art museum on 23 May 2013 - 'Beyond Melancholy: Sadness and Selfhood in Renaissance England' (<http://www.historyofemotions.org.au/upcoming-events/beyond-melancholy-sadness-and-selfhood-in-renaissance-england.aspx>).

Erin also co-presented at a workshop on 'Shakespeare and Emotion: Then and Now' (http://www.historyofemotions.org.au/media/59648/uq_teachers_workshop_web.pdf) for Brisbane-area high school teachers.