

Beverley Maynard

Doctoral Researcher

Current Status

PhD (part-time) writing up

Research Topic

Widening Participation Policy, Student Support and the Challenge for Higher Education

Research Summary

My doctoral thesis examines a widening participation policy in higher education and considers the academic support experienced by the student body. Based on action research involving some 42 participants – students, student support practitioners and academics, the research represents a mix of Russell group and Post-1992 higher education institutions. My research findings to date, would suggest a mismatch of expectations, with higher education institutions anticipating students to be well prepared for the rigours of academic life and students finding support patchy, not easily accessible, untimely and poorly resourced. One way of addressing these tensions is to consider a holistic model of on-going student support.

Research Interests

- Student support
- Models of student support
- Student life cycle
- Widening participation policy
- History of Widening participation
- Holistic models/approaches to student support
- Academic skills

Research Supervisors

Professor Ian Grosvenor \(/staff/profiles/education/grosvenor-ian.aspx\) and Dr Paul Warmington \(/staff/profiles/education/warmington-paul.aspx\)

Funding

Birmingham City University and self-funded

Membership of Research and Professional Organisations

Member of the Society for Research into Higher Education (SRHE)

Publications

Widening Participation and the role of the student support tutor (2006) in Towards a Global Understanding of Lifelong Learning: making a difference FACE

Any other information

University of Birmingham - Research Poster Conference, Birmingham Brief Competition prize winner – June 2010

Contact Details

Email: beverley.maynard@sky.com \(mailto:beverley.maynard@sky.com\)