About

Title of PhD: Political ecologies of the Urban Void

Supervisors: Stefan Bouzarovski, Jon Coaffee

Miguel Torres is in the initial stages of research which aims to formulate and illustrate with examples a concept of urban void, that is, what spatial features underlie open or unbuilt space in the city, what their relationship is with urban practice and how they influence the creation of urban tissue.

Qualifications

- Architect
- MSc in Spatial Planning

Biography

Miguel Torres studied architecture in the University of Seville, Spain. He later on specialized in Development Aid for Human Settlements in Madrid's Universidad Politécnica, and studied an MSc in Spatial Planning at Stockholm's Kungliga Tekniska Högskolan. Before undertaking his PhD studies at the University of Birmingham, he free-lanced as an architect and planner, mainly in the fields of international aid and built heritage.
