

Accredited short courses

As well as our postgraduate degrees we offer short courses designed to develop the skills and knowledge of professional people.

If you are an employer looking for a course for your employees, or an individual investing in your own personal development, we offer a diverse range of courses and pathways of study and development. All of our courses are designed to reflect work-based practice, while also benefiting from the internationally significant research that is inherent in our strong academic knowledge base.

INLOGOV is launching an exciting range of five day short courses to compliment and expand our existing portfolio. Future five day short courses include developments around Community Leadership, Organisational Leadership and Public Policy Research Methods.
