Graduate colloquium timetable 2011 - 12 (#timetable)

The POLSIS Graduate colloquium provides a forum for postgraduate research students to present their work in a relatively informal and friendly setting to their peers and departmental staff with the purpose of providing constructive and helpful feedback in the development of their projects. As an important element of building and maintaining the PhD community in the department, the aims of the Colloquium are:

- To provide an insight to the demands and developments of a PhD research project.
- To help early stage PhD students to build their individual research projects.
- To provide a facility for developed research projects to be tested and critically analysed and.
- To provide a platform for PhD students to present their papers prepared for conference presentations or journal publications.

This is to be arranged by the Colloquium convenors with the cooperation of the presenter.

In order to increase student engagement in the Graduate Colloquium and to encourage students to expand their knowledge and think beyond their own core research interests about methodological, theoretical and empirical components of a PhD project, we hope that every student will participate in the question and answer session by asking at least one appropriately designed question. This is to ensure wide-ranging participation and better feedback for the presenter.
