

Social Events

Postgraduate MA study at POLSIS includes plenty of opportunity for socialising, to make sure that the politics and international relations students who come to the department from around the world have the chance to meet and share experiences with each other

Indeed, we view the chance to share and reflect on a range of political and international backgrounds as an important part of the student experience. This includes regular MA social events organised by the department, a Christmas group meal, and an end-of-year barbecue.