About

Tim Haughton is a political scientist with a particular interest in electoral and party politics, the relationship between politics and government, the interaction between domestic and European sources of change, the relationship between Britain and the EU, the role of the past in the politics of the present and the domestic politics of Slovakia, Slovenia and the Czech Republic. He is the joint editor with Nathaniel Copsey of the Journal of Common Market Studies' Annual Review of the European Union (<http://eu.wiley.com/WileyCDA/Section/id-397569.html>). He served as the Director of the Centre for Russian and East European Studies (CREES) from August 2012 to July 2014. In that capacity he initiated and organized the celebrations surrounding the Centre's 50th anniversary (<http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government-society/departments/russian-east-european-studies/50-anniversary/index.aspx>) including a special series of seminars and an enhanced annual conference, he managed the transformation of CREES from a separate department into a pan-university research centre, and instigated and led the transformation of CREES into the Centre for Russian, European and Eurasian Studies.

- PhD in Social Sciences/Slavonic and East European Studies (UCL)
- Diploma in Czech (Westminster)
- MA in Slavonic and East European Studies (London)
- BSc (Econ) in Government (LSE)

Biography

Tim Haughton joined the University of Birmingham in 2003 having previously taught at University College London's School of Slavonic and East European Studies (SSEES), Sheffield University and Comenius University in Bratislava. Initially appointed as Lecturer in the Politics of Central and Eastern Europe, he was promoted to Senior Lecturer in 2006 and was promoted again to Reader (Associate Professor) in European Politics in 2012. He served as the Director of the Centre for Russian and East European Studies/Centre for Russian, European and Eurasian Studies from August 2012 to July 2014.

He has held Visiting Fellowships at Harvard University's Center for European Studies, the Institute for Human Sciences in Vienna, the Institute of International Relations in Prague and was a 2011-12 Austrian Marshall Plan Foundation Fellow at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies in Washington DC.

He has published widely on the politics of Central and Eastern Europe in a number of journals including Communist and Post-Communist Studies, Comparative European Politics, East European Politics, Electoral Studies, Europe-Asia Studies, Journal of Common Market Studies, Journal of Communist Studies and Transition Politics, Party Politics, Political Studies Review, Politics and Policy and West European Politics. He is the author of Constraints and Opportunities of Leadership in Post-Communist Europe (2005) and the editor of Party Politics in Central and Eastern Europe: Does EU Membership Matter? (2011). His research has been funded by the Economic and Social Research Council, the Nuffield Foundation, the Leverhulme Trust, the Centre for East European Language Based Area Studies (CEELBAS) and the Austrian Marshall Plan Foundation.

Dr Haughton has good links with the policy making community, having briefed four successive British Ambassadors/Heads of Mission to Slovakia and given presentations at the State Department in Washington DC.

With Isabelle Hertner he co-convenes the POLISIS departmental seminar series (<http://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government-society/departments/political-science-international-studies/events/seminar-series/2013-14/index.aspx>).

Teaching

2014-15

- Introduction to the European Union: History, Politics and Institutions (1st year undergraduate)
- Comparative European Government (2nd year undergraduate)
- Readings in Russian and East European Studies (MA/MSc) (convenor)
- He also contributes to various team-taught modules at both undergraduate and postgraduate level.

He has also taught numerous modules/courses for undergraduates and postgraduates including comparative politics, democratization, the political history and contemporary politics of Central and Eastern Europe and specialized courses on the European Union for civil servants on programmes funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Postgraduate supervision

Dr Haughton supervised Dr Bernd Reche's ESRC funded PhD thesis, 'Minority Rights in Post-Communist Bulgaria', Dr Brigid Fowler's ESRC funded thesis examining EU accession and party politics in Hungary, Dr William Westwater's thesis on regional legislatures in Russia, Dr Magdalena Skrybant's AHRC funded thesis exploring the relationship between the intellectuals and workers in the Solidarity movement in Poland, Dr Lara Scarpitta's ESRC funded thesis examining Romanian accession to the EU, Dr Richard Connolly's CEELBAS funded thesis exploring the relationship between economic structures and political change in post-communist Europe, Dr Odeta Barbullushi's thesis examining Albania's Euro-Atlantic orientation, Dr Mike Adkins's thesis exploring party based Euroscepticism and Dr Laurence Cooley's ESRC funded PhD thesis examining the European Union and ethnic conflict resolution and management in the Western Balkans.

He is supervisor/co-supervisor of theses exploring:

- infrastructure, legacy and scientific knowledge in the process of nuclear development in Poland
- the euro crisis and discourses of Europe in Germany, Ireland and Poland

He is particularly keen to supervise students wishing to study the domestic politics of East-Central Europe, especially party politics and the domestic politics of Slovakia, Slovenia and the Czech Republic

Research

Research interests

There are currently six strands to Dr Haughton's research:

- sources of stability and instability of party politics in Central and Eastern Europe
- domestic Czech, Slovak and Slovene politics
- the role of the past in the politics of the present
- the relationship between politics and government
- Britain and the European Union
- a book-length project providing an overview and examination of the political development of Central and Eastern Europe since the 1989 revolutions.
