Biography

Eleni's research interests are in the area of international environmental politics with a specific specialisation in the following topics: how do nations come to cooperate in environmental issues? Does this cooperation lead to environmentally beneficial outcomes? What are the challenges for environmental governance in general, and for climate governance in particular? What are the links between environment and other areas of global governance and what are the consequences of those links? Eleni has recently started a project on the role of developing countries in environmental governance and negotiations. She would be interested to supervise students focusing in international environmental politics and governance
