

History and Cultures Workshop series

Posted on Friday 5th October 2012

The History and Cultures Workshop is a recent postgraduate creation that arranges a seminar series, conferences and skills sessions.

The seminar series enables postgraduates both in and out of the University of Birmingham to keep up to date with one another's research in a lively and informal atmosphere. It welcomes papers on any historical period or any region from postgraduates who specialise in the study of history, cultures and area studies. Details of the autumn programme are at www.hcworkshop.net (<http://www.hcworkshop.net>) .

We encourage any postgraduates who they feel might be interested in coming along or present a paper in the future. We also welcome any undergraduates who staff feel might benefit and if any of the papers below interest you, we very much welcome the attendance of members of staff too.
