About

Anthony Arnall specialises in the law of the European Union. He worked at the European Court of Justice from 1989-92 and was Head of Birmingham Law School between 2006 and 2009. Professor Arnall is the author of The General Principles of EEC Law and the Individual (Leicester University Press, 1990) and The European Union and its Court of Justice (Oxford University Press, 2nd ed, 2006). He is Consultant Editor of the European Law Review \(http://www.sweetandmaxwell.co.uk/details?prodid=7216&unitid=7216&search=European%20Law%20Review&format=all&publisher=all&subject=all&from=1&to=50\), having been its co-editor from 1996 to 2007. Professor Arnall currently sits on the Advisory Board of the Common Market Law Reports and the comité scientifique of the Journal de Droit Européen. He has given evidence to a number of UK Parliamentary Select Committees and acted as Specialist Adviser to the House of Lords EU Committee.

Qualifications

- BA (Sussex)
- PhD (Leicester)
- Solicitor of the Senior Courts of England and Wales

Biography

After studying at the School of European Studies, University of Sussex, and the Institut d'Etudes Européennes, Université Libre de Bruxelles, Professor Arnall qualified as a solicitor with a 'magic circle' firm in the City of London. He began his academic career in 1983 at the University of Leicester, where he was awarded his doctorate in 1988. From 1989 to 1992, Professor Arnall worked at the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg as a référéndaire in the chambers of Advocate General FG Jacobs. He was appointed Wragge Professor of European Law at the University of Birmingham in 1991 and took up his post there the following year. He became Barber Professor of Jurisprudence in 2008. He is currently serving as Director of Education for the College of Arts & Law.

Postgraduate supervision

Professor Arnall is happy to supervise doctoral students working on legal aspects of the European Union, particularly (but not exclusively):

- the role and jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice
- the configuration of the European Union's judicial system
- the protection of fundamental rights in the European Union
- the relationship between European Union law and national law, especially that of the United Kingdom

Doctoral research

PhD title 'The Impact on the Individual of the General Principles of the Law of the European Economic Community.'

Research

Professor Arnall's research has focused mainly on the law of the European Union, in particular the role and jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice; the configuration of the European Union's judicial system; and the relationship between European Union law and national law, especially that of the United Kingdom. His monograph on the European Court of Justice, now in its second edition, has been described as 'an excellent book...useful, well-conceived and thoroughly well-executed...'

His recent work has examined the response of the Member States to decisions of the European Court of Justice perceived as 'activist'; the changing style of scholarship on European Union law; the approach of the Appellate Committee of the House of Lords to European Union law; the process which led to the Treaty of Lisbon and the various crises by which that process was punctuated; the events surrounding the ratification of the Treaty of Lisbon by Ireland; the principle of effective judicial protection in European Union law; the effect of the Treaty of Lisbon on the European Court of Justice; judicial dialogue in the European Union; and the role academics might play in responding to the case law of the European Court of Justice.
