

Adaptation, Recreation, Translation

ART (Adaptation, Recreation, Translation) is a research cluster administered by colleagues at the universities of Bristol, Birmingham, and Cardiff.

<http://www.bris.ac.uk/arts/research/art-network/about/>. Begun in 2012, ART explores the field of adaptation in modern times. Through its research publications, funding initiatives, and events open to academic colleagues and the wider public, ART aims to further understanding of adaptation as a creative practice. For more information on ART activities at the University of Birmingham, please contact Dr Andrew Watts at a.j.watts.2@bham.ac.uk (<mailto:a.j.watts.2@bham.ac.uk>).

To access our cross-institutional webpage, please click on the ART logo above.

