About

I am Professor of Art History and also Head of the School of Languages, Cultures, Art History and Music. My main teaching and research interests are in contemporary art, art criticism and theory, as well as the art and architecture of central Europe from 1860 to the present.

Qualifications

- BA (Hons) Classics and Modern Languages
- PhD Aesthetics / History of Art

Biography

I was awarded my first degree by the University of Oxford where I combined the study of German and Ancient Greek. I later continued on to complete a PhD in German philosophy, specifically, the aesthetic thought of Friedrich Nietzsche, at the University of St. Andrews.

I have been at Birmingham since April 2010. Before coming here I worked at the University of Teesside, having previously taught at University College of the Creative Arts and Edinburgh College of Art.

Teaching

My teaching covers three main areas

- German and Central European Art, Architecture and Heritage from the mid-nineteenth century onwards
- Aesthetics, Art Criticism and the Methods and Historiography of Art
- Contemporary Art since the 1970s

Postgraduate supervision

I welcome enquiries from prospective postgraduate students wishing to research any subject that overlaps with my research and teaching interests.

Research

My current research is focused on heritage and visual culture in Austria-Hungary from the mid-nineteenth century to its demise in 1918. I am particularly interested in the ways that artists, art critics and art historians, as well as museum curators and conservation professionals became drawn into wider political debates over the social and cultural identity of Austria-Hungary.

Recent publications dealing with this include my forthcoming book The Vienna School of Art History (Penn State University Press, 2013) as well as my edited volume Heritage, Ideology and Identity in Central and Eastern Europe (Boydell, 2012) and a volume of the journal Centropa (Vol. 12.2) on museums in central Europe.

I am also interested in contemporary topics as well, including the use of systems theory in art history, neuroaesthetics and issues in global art.

Other activities

I am associate editor of the Journal of Art Historiography (<http://arthistoriography.wordpress.com/>)
