About

My scholarly interests lie in the analysis and criticism of Western art music from the eighteenth to the twentieth century. I am fascinated by all the great composers of this era, and my aim is to understand their compositional techniques and strategies and their music's cultural significance. I have a special interest in the music of Edward Elgar, the University's first Professor of Music, whose legacy here is still felt.

Qualifications

LRSM Piano Performance (1995)

BA Mathematics, St Catherine's College, Oxford (1996)

MMus Royal Holloway, University of London (1997)

PhD Royal Holloway, University of London (2000)

Biography

The academic study of music began for me at postgraduate level. My PhD was on the concept of Aufmerksamkeit (attentiveness) in German writings on music of the late eighteenth century. In a revised version it later became my first monograph. For two years I held a Leverhulme Special Research Fellowship at Royal Holloway before moving to Birmingham as a lecturer in 2003. My work on Edward Elgar, the first Professor of Music at Birmingham, resulted in my second monograph. In 2005 I led the celebrations of the centenary of Elgar's appointment with a three-day international conference and an exhibition of original documents in the Barber Institute of Fine Arts on the theme of Elgar and Birmingham. As a pianist I hold the LRSM, for which my recital programme included Haydn's Sonata in E flat Hob. XVI/52 and Chopin's Ballade No. 4 in F minor. I have given public performances of Schumann's Piano Concerto and music by Bach (the 6-part ricercare from the Musical Offering), Chopin, Brahms, Rachmaninov, Janáček and Webern.

Teaching

In 2008 I introduced the taught MA in Music, of which I am now Programme Convenor. I have pushed forward curriculum reform and the introduction of new core modules at Final-year undergraduate level and, more recently, at first- and second-year levels. I have taught undergraduate courses on Classical form, Romantic harmony, first-year set works and composers such as Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert and Elgar. I convene the MA option module 'British Music Studies'.

Postgraduate supervision

I have supervised postgraduate research on composers such as Haydn, Beethoven and Brahms.

Research

I have published widely on late eighteenth-century music and aesthetics (recently focusing on Haydn's instrumental music), and twentieth-century British music and culture (especially Elgar). In 2014 my third monograph, on Viennese minor-key symphonies, will be published. I am currently working on a cross-disciplinary, jointly-authored monograph on music and nationalism from the eighteenth to the twentieth century.

My books are published by Oxford University Press, Cambridge University Press and Ashgate. Two of them have been separately reviewed in Journal of the American Musicological Society and one in the Times Literary Supplement. One was the sole subject of a review-article in Music & Letters. My work has also received reviews in the Musical Times (twice), Music & Letters (twice), Current Musicology, Early Music, German Studies Review, Modernism/Modernity, Twentieth-Century Music, Journal of the Royal Musical Association, Music Research Forum and Elgar Society Journal.

I have given invited research presentations at the Institute for Historical Research, the Conference of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, Jesus College Oxford, Durham University, Cardiff University, University College Dublin, Queen's University Belfast, the University of Huddersfield, the University of Surrey and Anglia Polytechnic University.

I am a member of the Steering Committee for the University of Birmingham's Centre for the Study of Cultural Modernity.

Other activities

I have been a member of the Editorial Board of the journal Music Analysis since 2001. For seven years I was a member of the Executive Committee of the Society for Music Analysis.
