

About Russian Studies

Russian Studies at Birmingham offers a vibrant and supportive atmosphere to students. With a small core of dedicated and experienced teaching and research staff, we provide a cosy and collegiate environment where all students get plenty of one-to-one attention.

All students are in close contact with academic personal tutors and are given intensive language tuition. We pride ourselves on producing some of the best all-round fluent graduates in Russian in the UK. Non-language teaching benefits from the contribution of a wide-range of modules by our partners in the Centre for Russian and East European Studies. Students can study Russian literature, culture, society, history, politics and international relations.

Russian in Modern Languages has close research links with the Centre for Russian and East European Studies \(/schools/government-society/departments/russian-east-european-studies/index.aspx\). Together with our colleagues in CREES we conduct a wide-range of funded research \(/schools/government-society/departments/russian-east-european-studies/research/index.aspx\), from Russian modernist and postmodernist literature, genre studies, the role of new media – such as social media internet and blogging in Russia and beyond, to ethnographic work on identity, class and consumption after socialism.

Privacy | Legal | Cookies and cookie policy | Accessibility | Site map | Website feedback | Charitable information

© University of Birmingham 2015

