Applications to study Metallurgy and Materials Science at Birmingham must be made through UCAS (the University and Colleges Admissions Service) (<http://www.ucas.com>).

Application forms are available in most schools and colleges but can also be obtained direct from UCAS and from British Council offices overseas. The University's prospectus (</undergraduate/courses/index.aspx>) will tell you all about the University, what you need to get in and information about accommodation and facilities.

Whenever possible we invite applicants to visit us (</schools/metallurgy-materials/visit-us/index.aspx>) to discuss the courses and to see the University campus and its facilities. We welcome applications from international students. For practical reasons it is not always possible to invite an overseas applicant to visit us, but where circumstances permit an invitation will always be extended. Normally an offer to overseas students will be based on the information contained in the application.
