Professor and Chair of Cognitive Neuroscience
Head of School

School of Psychology

Professor Shapiro in collaboration with other colleagues published the first paper on the 'attentional blink' phenomenon, which has attracted great interest on the part of many scientists. The original publication has been cited over 1000 times and approximately 500 reports on the same topic have followed from it. He employs a wide range of neuroscience approaches and tools in his ...

Research Associate
Doctoral Researcher

School of Psychology

Jess Kerlin is currently studying visual attention and working memory, with the goal of uncovering the neural mechanisms which underlie these processes. He is currently pursuing a PhD in Psychology under the supervision of Professor Kimron Shapiro \(/staff/profiles/psychology/shapiro-kim.aspx\) and Professor Jane Raymond \(/staff/profiles/psychology/raymond-jane.aspx\), utilizing a number of behavioural and neuroimaging techniques to address critical questions in the field.

Stephanie is undertaking doctoral research into the meaning and role of faith and faith communities on rehabilitating sexual offender populations. She is also examining how practitioners utilise faith communities as part of their rehabilitation strategies for such individuals. Stephanie recently presented her research findings at the International NOTA Conference.

Research Fellow

School of Psychology

Dr Ansgar Koene is a postdoctoral research fellow working on human sensory motor control. Based on his multi-disciplinary background in psychology and robotics he also leads the Behaviour Informatics \(http://behaviorinformatics.bham.ac.uk/\) project for facilitating interdisciplinary sharing of information related to human, animal and robot behaviour.

Senior Lecturer

School of Psychology

Andrea Krott is psycholinguist who is interested in language acquisition and brain responses to language processing. Many of her studies, carried out in various languages, have focused on how adults and children understand and produce compound words (e.g. "baby bottle"). Her current research concerns children's word learning and language-related brain responses (EEG) in ...

School of Psychology

Alexandra's main research interest is how the brain represents information that is processed by different sensory modalities and how it combines this information into a unified percept. In Alexandra's doctoral research she is investigating interactions between the auditory and visual modalities in the perceptual processing hierarchy using functional Magnetic Resonance Imaging and ...
