

Cognitive Behaviour Therapy

CBT is an increasingly popular form of psychological therapy, and many people who have learned about the methods find that it helps them a great deal in doing their job - if their job involves helping people in distress experience less distress, or perhaps helping people learn how to manage their life more effectively, for example in health care, education or the prison service.

Autumn 2015 dates for the following programmes are still to be finalised. To register interest and receive updates, please email cbtprogramme@contacts.bham.ac.uk (cbtprogramme@contacts.bham.ac.uk).

Acceptance & Commitment Therapy (ACT) for Insomnia

This one-day workshop for practitioners working in the field of physical and/or mental health care will focus on developing the core skills and knowledge to work with people with difficulties related to insomnia. In particular, it will focus on how the struggle with sleeplessness tends to worsen the problems of insomnia, and on helping clinicians develop skills in assisting their clients to let go of this struggle.

Skills Development Workshop in Acceptance and Commitment Therapy (ACT) – Intermediate Level

This workshop builds upon the introductory workshop, developing participants' skills in using the ACT approach in clinical practice. Participants will be trained in case formulation, socialising the client to the ACT model and therapeutic relationship, flexible mindfulness exercises, values clarification and helping clients to develop willingness through the use of cognitive defusion methods. http://shop.bham.ac.uk/browse/extra_info.asp?compid=1&modid=2&deptid=28&catid=85&prodid=847

Acceptance & Commitment Therapy (ACT) for Psychosis: A Mindful Approach to Recovery

This one-day skills workshop will focus on developing the core skills and knowledge to work with people recovering from psychosis using ACT. The transdiagnostic and functional model that underpins ACT emphasises the common processes that result in suffering, and amplify the impact of unusual experiences. ACT normalises the experience of suffering, while also providing a means to create a meaningful life in the face of unwanted experiences.

Acceptance & Commitment Therapy (ACT) for Long-term Physical Health Conditions

This one-day workshop will focus on developing the core skills and knowledge to work with people diagnosed with long-term physical health conditions. http://shop.bham.ac.uk/browse/extra_info.asp?compid=1&modid=2&deptid=28&catid=85&prodid=844
