Posted on Friday 10th February 2012

Jon Glasby (</staff/profiles/social-policy/glasby-jon.aspx>) has been appointed as a Senior Fellow of the National School for Social Care Research (<http://www.sscr.nihr.ac.uk>). The School is one of the leading funders of adult social care research in England, and Jon is one of the first six Senior Fellows appointed nationally. Recognised for their leading contribution to social care research, the role of Senior Fellows is to act as an advisor, critical friend and ambassador to the School and to help shape the future research agenda.

Kerry Allen (</staff/profiles/social-policy/allen-kerry.aspx>) and Robin Miller (</staff/profiles/social-policy/miller-robin.aspx>) have also been appointed as Fellows of the School, working with Jon on a national SSCR study into prevention and older people's services.
