About

Robin is a Senior Fellow at HSMC, the social care lead within the Chronic Disease Theme of the West Midlands Collaborations for Leadership in Applied Health Research & Care, and a Fellow of the School for Social Care Research. His research interests build on his practical experiences in the field, and centre on commissioning and management of integrated services, the role and impact of the Third Sector, and personalisation.

He is Director of Consultancy at HSMC and leads on a variety of knowledge exchange projects with health and social care organisations, with a particular focus on evaluating and learning from change initiatives. Robin is Co-Editor of the Journal of Integrated Care and an Associate Editor of the International Journal of Integrated Care. He is lead tutor for the integrated care specialism at HSMC and is a cohort director on the national NHS Elizabeth Garrett Anderson Leadership Programme. Outside of his University role, Robin is a non-executive director on the Board of Trident Social Investment Group and the chair of the board of trustees of Trident Reach. Robin specialises in the commissioning and provision of community based services, with a focus on:

- Integration between health, social care and wider public, third and private sector partnerships;
- Organisational development and change;
- Commissioning of health and social care services;
- Personalisation and social value in procurement;
- Evaluating external and internal impacts of projects and services.

Qualifications

His relevant qualifications and memberships are:

- Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (2013)
- PG Cert in Learning and Teaching in Higher Education, University of Birmingham (2013)
- Fellow of the School for Social Care Research (2011)
- Future Directors Programme, Social Care Institute of Excellence (2010)
- MSc in Public Sector Management (Distinction), University of Birmingham (2004)
- MA in Social Work, University of Edinburgh (1994)
- Diploma in Social Work, University of Edinburgh (1994)
- BSc (Upper Second), University of Glasgow 1990

Biography

Prior to taking up post at the University, Robin was a frontline social work practitioner in disability and mental health services before moving into operational management of integrated health and social care teams. He worked as a Commissioning Manager for Vulnerable Adults & People with a Learning Disability before taking on the leadership of an Integrated Service for children and adults with a disability. His final operational post was Deputy Director of Community Services within a Care Trust with a lead for Children's health services and adult disability and mental health. Through his consultancy work he has maintained a direct link with the realities of health and social practice, and seeks to support managers to use research and theory to improve patient experience and outcomes. He has won awards in relation to his management of integrated services (APSE Award for Public-Public Partnerships) and his academic publications (Highly Commended Award Winner at the Literati Network Awards for Excellence 2012).

Research

Current research and evaluation projects include:

- Evaluation of the Aspiring to Clinical Excellence Pioneer Programme (Birmingham Crosscity CCG)
- Social care lead within the Chronic Disease Theme of the West Midlands Collaborations for Leadership in Applied Health Research & Care
