

Call for papers: Illegality, youth and belonging is open

Posted on Tuesday 18th June 2013

The Call for Papers (</Documents/college-social-sciences/social-policy/iris/2013/call-for-papers-illegality-youth-and-belonging.pdf>) for the international conference on 'Illegality, youth and belonging' is now open. Deadline for submitting proposals is 15 July 2013.

The conference is organised by the Institute for Research into Superdiversity (IRiS) (</research/activity/superdiversity-institute/index.aspx>) at the University of Birmingham and the Harvard University Graduate School of Education in collaboration with the Oxford Institute of Social Policy and the Centre on Migration, Policy and Society at the University of Oxford and is part of a series on 'Legal status, rights and belonging' (</schools/social-policy/departments/applied-social-studies/research/projects/2013/legal-status-rights-and-belonging.aspx>) jointly convened by Roberto G. Gonzales (Harvard) and Nando Sigona (Birmingham).
