

Third prestigious research award in two years for Dr Anna Phillips

Posted on Thursday 8th September 2011

Dr Anna Phillips was recently awarded the British Psychological Society Division of Health Psychology Award 2011 for Outstanding Contributions to research, a prestigious award judged across all career levels including professor. This is Dr Phillips' third prestigious research award in two years, following on from two international early career awards in 2010.

